Title of the Panel:

“IGF to GDC: An Equitable Framework for Developing Countries”

Background

The United Nations Internet Governance Forum (IGF) brings together stakeholders from various sectors to discuss digital public policy. While it does not produce negotiated outcomes, the IGF informs and inspires policymakers in both the public and private sectors. The IGF operates year-round, engaging in policy, outreach, and community and capacity-building activities. These efforts aim to foster a common understanding of how to maximize digital opportunities and address digital risks and challenges. The IGF’s intersessional work culminates in annual meetings where delegates discuss critical issues, share best practices, and exchange policy recommendations. The outputs from these meetings are shared with global and national decision-making bodies.

The IGF plays a pivotal role in the development and promotion of the Global Digital Compact. As a platform that brings together a wide range of stakeholders, the IGF provides a unique space for dialogue and collaboration on digital governance issues. The discussions and insights generated at the IGF contribute to the shaping of the Global Digital Compact by highlighting the diverse perspectives and needs of different sectors and regions. The IGF’s inclusive and transparent approach ensures that the principles of the Global Digital Compact are informed by a broad and representative range of voices, making it a truly global initiative
